Guns Thunder Along. The British went after Delville woo

The British went after Delville wood and took it.

The Germans had been quiet because the British made no infinity attack, but all the while the machine guns had been rattling and the artillery had kept up a thunderous drum beat in what before this effensive would have been referred to as a violent artillery duel. So commanplace has the continual bombardment become that one officer whose post of duty is with the transport just out of the range of the shells, complains that he is awakened when there is a little a right.

Thursday morning the fritish put on Delville wood the heaviest concentration of shell fire in a given area ever directed against field fortifications. Even the summers were amixed when they computed its volume per minute in preparing the way for the infantry. Counting the front a 1000 yards, there must have been three shells a minute failing on every yard.

Would Annihilate the purpose was to leave nothing standing nothing living. Not a single German solper in a tree, not a single German machine gus but was to be put out of business by the tornado of blasts. Delville wood has left Trone and with a lame regulation. The in-Would Annihilate Everything.

til, of Delville wood, detended A by the famous Brandenburgers and held highly important by the Germans, has been captured by the British. This success is expected greatly to farilitate British efforts to clinich their hole on Longueval and advance along the road to Elspaume.

The hattle at Verdun is still raging with violence Paris reports the checking of a German trenches at Auberive, in the Champiagne, by a Bussian reconnoisering party, is announced in the Paris statement.

The Hussian advance directed at Brody, in northeastern Galleia, is continuing successfully, Petrograd amounces and so, too, is the Russian advance in Asis minor.

On the Bulkian front, the only war area in which comparative quietude has prevailed, the Servians are reported to be on the offensive. They have actacked Macedonian positions held by the Bulgers and according to a Salontic.

GEN. SWEETSER ORDERS PROBE OF SNIPING SUNDAY NIGHT

An investigation of the shooting of the "Island" Sunday night has been ordered by Brig. Gen Leroy Sweetser of the second Massichusetts infantry brigade.

The investigation will be a complete one to determine who was responsible for the shooting. The militia outposts reported that Mexicars fired into the Massachusetts camp white the Mexican officials claim the Messachusetts outposts started the firing.

The fact that a build struck on Bliss street, due north of the camp, is taken as an indication that the firing started from the Mexican side.
